PLANTATION RENDEZVOUS FOR REVOLUTIONISTS

Thinks Revolt Widespread, but been in progress there for several weeks it is of more than usual interest to get word from that section. According to Mr. Cluff, the disturbance is pretty general, extending as far south to Mr. Cluff, the disturbance very promptly dispersed the gathering and dispatched the leaders.

This time the southern wing of the insurrection made its rendezvous in one part of the plantation. Generals and other officers went from Vera Cruz and Coatzacoalcos and called upon the people to rally to the standard of revolution.

First Signs of Trouble.

"The first intimation we had of any local trouble," said Mr. Cluff last evening, "was the cutting of our telephone wires. From one labor village to action, the plantation headquarters. They took what they needed from the stores, appropriated horses and mules, but gave receipts for everything, the leaders allowing no pillaging and offering no indignities to any one. It is the policy of their leaders to give no excuse for American interference. For this reason the lives of foreigner, are probably safer than ever before. From our place the revolutionists marched to the seat of the municipality of Cardenas—a town of about 5000 people. While celebrating their unopposed occupation of the public plaza a company of soldiers that had been quietly landed from a steamboat on the river near by, opened fire. It was a spirited battle, and some were wounded, but the insurrectos gave way at list.

Mr. Cluff said:

Mr. Cluff said:

"I was assured by officials of the government that every claim of the company would be promptly paid without presenting it through the ordinary channels of diplomacy. Besides, the insurgent leaders are issuing official resists, which graystates payment in the ceipts, which guarantee payment in the event of their success.
